Daddy's Girl

(NAPSA)—A quiet college professor must leave the classroom—and her ordinary, orderly life—behind when she learns of one criminal act and is framed for another. This terrible day kick-starts the latest thriller, “Daddy’s Girl” (Harper Mass Market), from New York Times best-selling author Lisa Scottoline.

Frequently overshadowed by her successful parents and testosterone-fueled big brothers, Natalie Greco sees her world turn upside down when she accompanies a friend to a prison for a lecture, only to get caught in a riot—and lockdown—where a guard is killed right in front of her.

Intent on fulfilling the guard’s dying request, Natalie’s quest runs into some potentially deadly obstacles—and the scholar must learn fast as she fights to save her own life.

Lisa Scottoline is the New York Times best-selling author of 14 novels.
