

Irresistible Fun

(NAPSA)—Sometimes home is the place you know best and the place where you're best known. That's an important theme in the third installment of the popular Partonville series by Charlene Baumbich: "Dearest Dorothy, Help! I've Lost Myself" (Penguin Original, $10.95).

Dearest Dorothy, Help! I've Lost Myself!

Charlene Ann Baumbich

author of Dearest Dorothy, Are We There Yet? and Dearest Dorothy, Slow Down, You're Wearing Us Out!

Baumbich's first two heartwarming Partonville novels immersed thousands in the small town of Partonville and introduced them to a community of characters, including the spunky and irresistible heroine—87-year-old Dorothy Jean Wetstra.

In the newest book, Partonville tries to celebrate its centennial plus 30, the acting mayor's traffic flow plan backfires and a newcomer deepens her ties to the community.

Described as hilarious, touching and imaginative, the new novel celebrates the simple pleasures of life with wonderful storytelling and wit.

Available at www.us.penguin.com or wherever books are sold.