

Teach Yourself Visually

(NAPSA)—Do you learn faster by seeing and doing than by wading through tedious instructions? In the four new additions to the popular “Teach Yourself Visually” series by Wiley, color photos and easy-to-follow instructions lead the way to a craftier you! Now seeing is believing!

Start with “Teach Yourself Visually Crocheting” by Kim Werker and Cecily Keim, and let the step-by-step instructions accompanying each photo teach you how you can make clothing, accessories and home decor by using just a ball of yarn and a hook!

Or join one of the 4 million Americans to take up knitting in the last year and let Sharon Turner’s “Teach Yourself Visually Knitting” teach you the secrets to mastering this popular hobby. Turner also wrote “Teach Yourself Visually Knitting Design,” the perfect guide for any knitter looking to break free of pattern dependency.

You can also learn the soothing meditative effect of the art of handspinning (making yarn with raw fiber) with “Teach Yourself Visually Handspinning” by Judith MacKenzie McCuin, a nationally known master weaver and spinner.

With each skill or technique defined and described and detailed color photos to demonstrate each step, you’ll be creating masterpieces in no time!
