

Fabulous Flirting Tips

(NAPSA)—What's luck got to do with it? Very little—when it comes to finding love. Flirting is the way to meet the perfect stranger, says a new book, and anyone can improve his or her flirting skills.

“Lucky in Love: 52 Fabulous, Foolproof Flirting Strategies” (Plume Books, $13), by relationship and flirting expert Susan Rabin, offers a tip for every week of the year.

According to Rabin, “Flirting is a skill that enables you to communicate your feelings and understand the signals others send your way.”

Rabin points out that while anyone can learn to flirt, the real key to being lucky in love is to take advantage of every occasion to put those flirting skills to work.

Accompanied by real-life stories and a fun quiz that will help readers determine their flirting style, strengths and weaknesses, “Lucky in Love” can help show you how to:

- meet someone virtually every day of your life
- use five simple ways to invite and welcome the advances of others
- decide when to make a move—and when not to
- relate and date more effectively on the Internet.
