

Pointers For Parents-To-Be Pink Or Blue And Green

by Rachel Mallon, Interior Designer (NAPSA)—Whether you are decorating your nursery for a baby boy or girl, you may find yourself seeking green. Fortunately, you no longer need to sacrifice aesthetics when looking for products that are good for baby and the environment. Here are a few suggestions for creating a naturally beautiful nursery:

Eco-friendly furniture is an important element for “greening” a baby’s room.

- Crib: Bonavita’s La Madre crib and furniture collection is not only stunning but features sustainable woods and environmentally safe finishes and glues. Fashioned from natural bamboo veneers and hardwood, the set is a design masterpiece.

- Bedding: Surround your baby with organic cotton bedding. CoCaLo Natural and Kids Line Organics both offer beautiful organic sets.

- Toys: Look for toys made from wood instead of plastic and consider products made with water-based paint. Items in Sassy’s cute Earth Brights collection are perfect for baby and so cute to display.

- Accessories: Get crafty and recycle. Paint old picture frames, borrow grandma’s rocking chair and see what’s hiding in your attic. For a chance to win products featured in this story, and for more of my tips, visit www.lajobi.com.
