“Me First” Not So For Counselors

(NAPSA)—Despite today’s “me first” society, there are still college graduates who want to make a difference.

“We can tell if a counselor job applicant has a passion about our work,” said Malia Kekahuna, who hires counselors for Eckerd Youth Alternatives (EYA), a leading provider of services for troubled youths. “They want to have an impact on these kids. They change society one child at a time.”

In today’s “me first” society, there are still some who want to make a difference.

EYA has several outdoor programs in eight states and is constantly looking for counselors with various majors. The programs integrate group and individual therapy, adventure, communication skills and a fully accredited educational component.

Counselors have few expenses, so many save money while enjoying an outdoor lifestyle. Skills like patience and problem solving apply easily to any career.

“The rewards are immense,” Kekahuna said. “A connection with a child may last a lifetime.”

EYA is seeking counselors in Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, Vermont, New Hampshire, Tennessee, Rhode Island and Ohio. For more information, call 1-800-222-1473 or see www.eckerdyouth.org.
