

FASHION FINDS

Fun Shoe Trends Can Walk Your Wallet Farther

(NAPSA)—Keeping your feet in fashionable shoes need not hurt your pocketbook.

There are many chic choices for budget-conscious fashionistas and that's good news, because a recent survey shows shoes are essential to a woman's happiness. According to the survey, the average shoe addict has about 40 pairs of shoes and even the pragmatic buyer has 20.

Fifty-six percent of women would give up chocolate and dessert for a month for the perfect pair of shoes. But price does matter. Sixty-eight percent said they would rather find a favorite pair of shoes at the right price than go out on a hot date.

Fortunately, the kind of shoe therapy required to lift your spirits doesn't have to cost a lot. Nine West, known for its stylish glamour favored by star customers Halle

Give your legs a lift with this exotic-skin, square-toed pump called the Mane.

Make a fashion statement in this stunning open-toe gladiator sandal called Jamil.

Berry, Eva Longoria-Parker and Blake Lively, has many reasonably priced footwear finds under one hundred dollars.

Two of the season's most sought-after trends are the exotic square-toe pump and the highly sought-after Gladiator sandal. These trends represent just a few of the must-have looks of the season.

Pair your favorite footwear finds with the latest trends in bags, including exotic python prints, studded details, fringe and more, all at affordable prices.

Lucky magazine previously awarded Nine West the best retail source for chic and affordable footwear for its runway-worthy styles that don't put a dent in your wallet. All styles are available in-store and online at www.ninewest.com.