Boomers Making Smarter Choices To Protect Good Health

(NAPSA)—Every day, more than 10,000 baby boomers turn 65 and become eligible for Medicare—but the generation that put the first man on the moon doesn't plan to spend retirement sitting back in a rocking chair. In fact, a recent survey shows that 87 percent of New York area boomers say "you're only as old as you feel."

The survey, conducted by Affinity Health Plan and Kelton, found that not only are boomers optimistic about retirement (85 percent)—nearly two-thirds of those surveyed believe that the best times are ahead of them. So what do boomers plan to do with their time? A majority (77 percent) plan to travel more, 47 percent plan to attend more sporting events and concerts, and 34 percent are taking up new hobbies. Boomers are also taking better care of their health so they can enjoy an active lifestyle for years to come. Seventy-five percent report eating healthier and 66 percent report that they are exercising more. Looking, feeling and acting young may be why 84 percent of boomers surveyed said, "Now is the time in my life when I get to do the things I always wanted to do."

And if you're turning 65 and thinking about Medicare, consider this: Survey results show that people enrolled in Medicare are more likely than their counterparts to report feeling self-sufficient and fulfilled, and strongly believe that they are as healthy today as they can be.

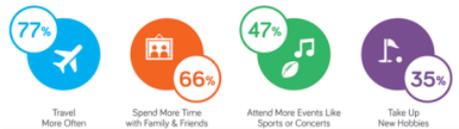

Boomers need a Medicare plan that can keep up. To make Medicare easier, the Affinity Medicare Passport Portfolio of Plans includes five convenient programs, each offering greater benefits than Original Medicare. Designed to better reflect the lifestyles and
