This Father's Day Help Dad Look His Best

(NAPSA)—A growing number of today's fathers are concerned about looking fashionable—for both personal and professional reasons.

Experts say that people who are pleased with how they present themselves tend to enjoy success personally, as well as professionally—this gives many Dads more than one reason to keep fashion top of mind.

The good news for gift givers this Father's Day is a number of products are available that can help today's Dads look and feel their best—and they are easy to find:

Whatever your Dad's look may be, no look is complete without proper grooming, so consider giving Dad a convenient all-in-one personal care kit. These kits are easily found in many men's sections of department stores. It's best to try and find one that includes a nose hair trimmer, finger and toenail clippers, tweezers, file, lint brush, penknife and comb; all the necessary tools for an impeccable appearance.

A new shaver, such as the Braun Syncro System can keep Dad looking sharp. The self-cleaning shaver features a four-way moving head that combines side-to-side oscillation with pivoting motion that results in a very close, comfortable shave. With the push of a button, the unit thoroughly cleans and conditions the shaver head, ensuring optimal shaving performance.

Giving Dad a gift that can help him look and feel his best is a great way to show you care.

Let's not forget Dad's skin. Just because he's a man, his skin needs proper care too. There are a number of great products on the market that are designed just for him. Why not put a gift basket together of Dad's favorite alcohol-free after-shave, a moisturizer with an SPF, toner, and an exfoliating face soap. Try and choose products with little fragrance or ones similar to his favorite colognes.

This Father's Day choose gifts that help Dad put his best foot forward and ensure that he is perfectly groomed.
