

NEWSWORTHY TRENDS

High-Tech Hotels

(NAPSA)—More than half of hotel guests made their reservations online last year, according to a study from J.D. Power and Associates. And for many guests, wireless Internet access has come to be as expected as travel-size shampoos in the shower.

Now guests might also be able to easily customize their hotel stays by ordering different services—ranging from wake-up calls to spa appointments, housekeeping and room service—right from their cell phones, laptops or other wireless devices.

A new high-tech hotel feature lets guests personalize their experience using their cell phone's touch screen.

Hotels across the country and around the world now offer the high-tech option, called Hotel Evolution from runtriz. Guests receive instructions for the system upon check-in and can use it for their entire stay and even after checking out.

For more information, visit www.runtriz.com.