Getting More Than A Hotel Room

(NAPSA)—A growing number of vacationers, tired of cramming into hotel rooms, are discovering they can stay in a variety of homes, town homes and condos on their next trip.

It's a lot more fun in Orlando when visitors can stay in a house while visiting the mouse.

Staying in a resort home affords many amenities not available in a hotel. Vacationers are quickly learning it's a much better way to visit Orlando, the attractions and see everything Florida has to offer. Three of the most popular resort communities in Orlando are Glenbrook Resort, Windsor Palms Resort and the new luxurious Windsor Hills.

The communities feature private pool homes, tennis courts, community clubhouse, exercise facilities, game rooms, movie theatres, 24/7 gate access and multiple golf courses within minutes of Orlando's top attractions.
