Life-Saving Tool For Police And Fire Heroes

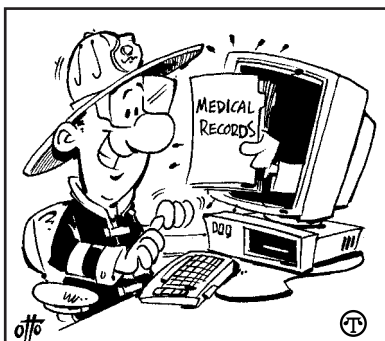

(NAPSA)—A public company that provides medical records online to physicians and caregivers is providing its medical records online product, Patient Data Quickly (PDQ), to all police, firefighters and emergency personnel in America at no cost. MedStrong International Corporation (OTC Bulletin Board: MSRG and MSRGW), the company which launched the complimentary program, has also extended the offer to immediate family members of emergency personnel.

The free program will provide MedStrong PDQ membership to the million and a half police, firefighters and emergency personnel nationally exposed to hazards every day. The company will coordinate the program through the various fire, police, and emergency personnel associations throughout America.

Jerry R. Farrar, President and Chief Executive Officer of MedStrong stated, "These brave men and women dedicate their lives to this country and are the nation's first line of defense and response in both chaotic and catastrophic events. MedStrong feels the risks of these valiant individuals and their families can be greatly reduced in emergency situations by providing instant access to an individual's medical records online anywhere in the world where there is Internet access in a confidential environment."

Approximately 300,000 people throughout America and Canada are admitted to emergency rooms every day. Many of them are either very old, very young, or are unable to communicate their individual medical needs to the emergency room doctor.

In addition to offering on-demand medical information via the Web, the PDQ program guarantees the security and confidentiality of members' Emergency PDQ medical records online through
