

Countdown To Your Big Night

(NAPSA)—Whether it's your high school reunion or some other big event, many women believe, to look your best you have to start early. Some women in a recent survey even said they would start working on their look at least six months in advance. According to stylist-to-the-stars Kevin Charles Boyle, of the Four Seasons Biltmore, Santa Barbara, CA, you don't have to begin quite that early. Here's his timeline for a beautiful time:

- Two months prior: Start uncovering your youthful skin. Almost half the women surveyed said they'd rather walk in with smooth skin than with a gorgeous husband or even an armload of diamonds. Boyle says a quick way to minimize the appearance of fine lines and wrinkles may be to try Jafra Intensive Retinol Treatment. The treatment, which combines cassie flower and narcissus extract with retinol, the purest form of Vitamin A, is clinically proven to show improvement in as little as two weeks, with more dramatic results with longer use.

- One month prior: Choose the outfit. Few things can derail your party mood faster than scrambling around for something to wear at the last minute. Avoid trying to dress in a way you wouldn't normally. Pick an ensemble that expresses your own inimitable style.

- Two weeks prior: Prepare your hair. Half the women surveyed said they would cut their hair for their reunion—but Boyle advises not to wait until the last minute. You don't want to be left in tears on the day of the big event because of a bad hair job. Instead, go early to a stylist so you can get acquainted with your new 'do.

- The day of: Do something relaxing and pampering. Get a massage or a manicure and pedicure. Use makeup sparingly to enhance—not cover—your features.
