

Wedding Wisdom

A Unique Touch Makes A Lasting Impression

(NAPSA)—There may be as many interesting ways to personalize a wedding as there are couples. Jennifer Aniston and Brad Pitt had heart-shaped fireworks. Elvis and Priscilla Presley had a six-foot, pearl-studded cake. Madonna wore a Cartier tiara once worn by Princess Grace.

It's almost impossible to find two ceremonies that are exactly alike—and as weddings become more and more individualized, that trend is likely to continue.

One way couples are personalizing their big day is by having the wedding ceremony in untraditional locations that reflect some aspect of their romance. A couple who met on a plane rented a Cessna and performed their nuptials on the tarmac before being lifted off to a secret hide-away honeymoon. Another idea comes from a couple who was married on an island to express their mutual love for the water that surrounded it. A different bride and groom wed in an apple orchard after learning that they both played in that same orchard as children.

Creating the perfect event lies in the smallest details, such as the popular trend of personalizing weddings by giving colorful favors to the guests. For example, some brides are adding a dazzling touch to the festivities by creating their own blend of "M&M's" Milk Chocolate Candies in their wedding colors.

Colorful candy favors can leave a sweet impression on wedding guests.

For an engagement party, a shower, an afternoon tea or table settings at a wedding reception, the right color and rich taste of the world's number one confectionery brand help create an impressive event. Available in 21 vibrant colors, a mix of "M&M's" COLORWORKS is sure to leave guests with a sweet memory of your special day.

To learn more, visit the Web site at www.colorworks.com/now or call 1-888-COLOR-88.