Train + Car = Best European Vacation

(NAPSA)—North American visitors to Europe are discovering that the equation that gives them the most flexible options for seeing the continent's diverse attractions is a delightfully simple one: Train + car = the best European holiday.

The real advantage comes in buying rail and rental car together, which gives travelers the maximum flexibility to move around as they want at reasonable prices. And rental cars are readily available at almost every train station to suit a traveler's whim.

There are six of these handy Rail Europe Rail 'n Drive passes—the brand new Eurail Selectpass Drive, which for the first time allows you to choose three bordering countries; the EurailDrive Pass for use in 17 different countries; Europass Drive for France, Germany, Italy, Spain and Switzerland. Also separate rail-and-drive passes for France, Germany, Italy, Scandinavia and Spain as well as Britain.

All of these travel bargains give you 2-4 days of unlimited train with a railpass, plus 2 days of unlimited mileage rental car, depending on which pass you use and the overall length of travel, starting from $149 in second class per person. Car categories can be either economy, compact, intermediate or small automatic—more varieties in France—and additional rail and car days are available so you can go when and how you want.
