

Holiday Trivia

(NAPSA)—What holiday staple weighs 19,700,000 pounds—or as heavy as 25 fully loaded 747-400 jumbo jets, 39 Statues of Liberty, 27 Empire State Buildings, or four space shuttles?

The answer: all the 2002 JCPenney Christmas Catalogs distributed this holiday season. (For the record, they also contain 479,600,000 pages, which—if placed end-to-end—would circle the earth 40 times and equal two round-trips to the moon.)

One for the Records

items under $100.

The least expensive gift is a set of NFL bed sheets that costs $7; the most expensive item is an Electric Scooter for $2,499.

The company's buyers say they traveled the world in search of the most sought-after gifts for the holiday season, and the catalog's sheer size—along with competitive prices—truly makes it one of the best sources for ultimate gift solutions. One last bit of trivia: JCPenney has been publishing Christmas catalogs since 1963.
