

EDUCATION

News & Notes

New Resources For Home Schoolers

(NAPSA)—There's good news for parents who want to educate their children at home.

According to the U.S. Department of Education, the home schooling trend in the United States continues to grow. It is estimated that at least 850,000 children are now being taught at home.

Parent-Teacher stores offer educational resources to parents committed to home schooling.

A number of parents have expressed an interest in home schooling but have voiced a concern that they won't have access to the necessary educational resources.

Fortunately, a growing number of Parent-Teacher stores offer a variety of products for every age, ability and skill level. They specialize in products that stimulate learning using creativity and fun.

Parents can find everything from curriculum guides to learning aides and workbooks to educational software and games. Many stores also offer in-store workshops.

To learn more or find a Parent-Teacher Store near you, visit www.TeacherStores.com online.