Franchise A Shipping Shop

(NAPSA)—You can provide an important benefit to the neighborhood—and make money at the same time. How? By running your own franchised package-shipping service.

You don't have to have a lot of retail or entrepreneurial experience to run a thriving, competitive and highly successful business that can flourish even in uncertain economic times.

Running a shipping-service store can be a smart way to help your community while helping yourself to success.

More than just a pack-and-ship store, your shop can be a local service center with a basket of needed services for the community.

Postal Connections of America franchise stores make life easier for people on the go, as well as small businesses, by offering shipping alternatives; packaging; freight; printing and copies; mail receiving; ink-jet, toner and laser cartridges; notary; fax; and a unique variety of online buying and selling services.

For example, there's Media Trader, a unique and proprietary software that lets customers sell old CDs, DVDs, video games and textbooks for cash. The store resells the items through Amazon.com.
