Search On Your Mobile Phone

(NAPSA)—Mobile phone carriers now have access to the latest and greatest Internet technology.

Recently, AT&T and Yahoo! announced that they will offer Yahoo! oneSearch to mobile subscribers through AT&T's MEdia™ Net portal.

Through the search engine, mobile phone owners can receive answers and information formatted for mobile screens, removing the need to navigate through a sea of links to PC Web sites.

You can search for anything—from stock quotes, celebrity news, and Web sites to sport scores, movie listings and local restaurant reviews. The search engine is so intelligent it understands your intent, and if you permit location information to be remembered, gives answers tailored to wherever you may be. You can get search results on one page—conveniently grouped into meaningful categories. Customers can also shop for ringtones, wallpapers, mobile games and other content made available in the search results.

Web access can also help you become familiar with your surroundings while you're traveling. Simply type in a request and you will get local business listings, arranged by distance and user rating, addresses, phone numbers and more—all the information you need to get from here to there in no time. Whether you are driving around your hometown or navigating while traveling, you can find the information you need.

To access this service from your mobile phone, visit the AT&T MEdia Net portal. You can also visit <http://mobile.yahoo.com> for more information.
