Sending Luggage Ahead

(NAPSA)—In the United States, more than 1.5 billion pieces of luggage move through our airports every year. And of that number, on average, airlines and airports lose 57 suitcases per minute. But that is expected to change...thanks to a delivery and transportation company that's pioneered a solution for easy world-wide shipping of packages and luggage.

Travelers can now ship their luggage, without the risk of bags getting lost en route.

A company called Universal Express has created Luggage Express and its premier service, Virtual Bellhop—which provides luggage delivery service across the United States and at locations throughout the world. A company representative meets you at a pre-arranged place, whisks your luggage away and has it waiting for you at the destination you desire.

Travelers benefit not only from greater assurance that their bags will arrive, but in time savings—at both ends of the trip. There's no more waiting on line to check luggage, or at the baggage carousel once you arrive.
