

One-of-a-Kind Vacation

(NAPSA)—College students who prefer to “do good” rather than “do the town” during school breaks may experience a life-altering, one-of-a-kind vacation. Students may find themselves caring for maternity patients in Brazil, conserving a rainforest in Volunteer vacations offer once-in-a lifetime experiences such as teaching children, saving a rainforest or endangered animals.

Costa Rica, saving endangered animals in South Africa, or working with the world famous Terracotta Soldiers in China. An international volunteer vacation provider, i-to-i, arranges volunteer vacations ranging from 1 to 24 weeks, that help students gain real-world experience, explore career options, or earn school credits through independent study. All i-to-i volunteer vacations are fully supported by trained advisors.

For more information about volunteer vacation opportunities, visit www.i-to-i.com or call (800) 985-4864 for more information or a free 48-page color brochure.