

Entertaining Made Easy

A Campfire Classic In Your Own Kitchen

(NAPSA)—An 80-year-old part of camping out can easily be re-created at home. S'mores are a popular treat that have been around since at least 1927.

It's easy to make s'mores with a campfire, and now Little Debbie makes them easy to make at home with Marshmallow Puffs.

That means you don't need a campfire to create this delicious dessert or snack anytime. All you need is a broiler, some graham crackers, Marshmallow Puffs, chocolate and some eager eaters.

Puffs
Melted chocolate

Preheat broiler on high. Break cracker sheets in half crosswise to create squares; arrange 8 cracker squares in a single layer on a heavy-duty baking sheet or broiler pan. Place 1 Marshmallow Puff on each cracker half. Broil Marshmallow Puffs for 45 seconds or until soft and lightly

You don't need to leave your kitchen for a delightful campfire treat.

browned. Remove from oven. Quickly top each Marshmallow Puff with remaining cracker halves, pressing gently. Let stand 10 minutes. Drizzle with melted chocolate.

If you have a small kitchen torch, use it to brown the Marshmallow Puffs instead of broiling them. If broiling, keep a close watch as they brown very quickly.

As when camping, you can make the marshmallows more or less brown according to individual tastes.
